ADITUM ALTERNATIVE INCOME FUND COMMENTARY

The fund had another strong month with almost all of the portfolio contributing to returns. Themes from June continued with yield compression on the liquid portion complemented by solid performance from the illiquid book. Sterling continued to strengthen which also assisted with returns. Our move from cash to short-dated high yield helped as this holding rose almost 2% over the month and we may look to reduce cash further in the coming month as new ideas are added to the portfolio.

Portfolio activity was significantly lower over the month and we will not add to the liquid element at these levels. Instead, we are reviewing a micro finance position and Pemberton had another capital call so exposure to this element of the fund will increase. This should reduce volatility slightly in the event that markets soften, although monetary and fiscal policy appears extremely accommodative globally so we would use setbacks to add to positions.
