ADITUM ALTERNATIVE INCOME FUND COMMENTARY

November saw a continuation of the themes from the previous two months with benchmark yields rising again and a risk-off theme developing across most markets. Jerome Powell's re-appointment as Fed chair coincided with what appears to be a firmer stance on QE and monetary policy in general as the "transitory" wording around inflation expectations was dropped. While this caused short term rates to rise, longer term bonds performed relatively well as yield curves flattened further – meaning those defensive, shorter-dated positions were ironically worst affected. On a micro level, and within the portfolio, a provision on a holding in our largest fund also caused a slight fall. The Dollar strengthened against a basket of major trading currencies as rate differential moved by in favour of the Greenback.

Against this backdrop, the rolling three-month performance of (0.21%), while disappointing in absolute terms, shows the fund's ability to maintain value in difficult circumstances. We remain overweight to alternatives which also helped. Most holdings performed well and we have added to our position in US consumer loans funded by distributions from our private debt holding. We retain a small exposure to GBP and may remove more of the hedges if weakness persists. The underlying sterling assets performed well over the month with gains from some freehold disposals and a recovery in UK commercial real estate. We continue to look for new alternative positions - while liquid markets remain challenging - to diversify income sources further.

*This indicative benchmark is calculated by Aditum Investment Management Limited using the USD 1M LIBOR rate published by ICE, assuming ACT/360 interest rate calculation, full notional invested and reinvested each month as of the last rate published the previous month.
