Signature CIO Growth Fund Open Ended IC PLC

MASTER FUND COMMENTARY

As of 31 December 2024

Fund Performance

The Signature CIO Growth Fund posted negative returns in December, primarily due to the sell-off in the equity market.

Our overweight position in US equities negatively impacted performance following the Federal Reserve's 25 basis point rate cut and slower easing signals for 2025. Despite this, US equities remain one of the top performers year-to-date.

Our overweight allocation in gold provided diversification, offsetting some losses from US equities.

Major currencies such the euro, pound, and yen weakened further against the dollar, translating into positive alpha from the hedging of DM IG (DM IG) government bonds. Additionally, a lower exposure in EM Local Currency bonds contributed positively to performance.

Our overweight position in DM HY bonds, particularly short-duration high yield bond, was a standout performer. High yield bonds have outperformed their investment grade counterparts, driven by expectations of pro-business policies under Trump's administration and credit spreads have tightened to historical lows due to strong demand. Increased exposure to high quality credit such as Asia USD bonds, also added value.

Our opportunistic trade in US Financials has also outperformed the broader US equity market and contributed positively.

Fund Positioning

The fund continues to be well-positioned for the current market environment.

Within equities, the outlook on equities has been upgraded to Overweight, with a preference for US equities due to expected pro-growth policies from President-elect Trump. To capitalise on this, we have marginally increased our allocation to US equities.

Within bonds, we maintain a balanced tilt between rates and credit. Following an upgrade to Overweight by the Global Investment Committee (GIC), we have increased our exposure to DM HY bonds despite rich valuations. Additionally, the allocation to Developed Market Investment Grade (DM IG) government bonds has been increased due to attractive yields, providing a buffer against potential drawdowns. Conversely, exposure to Emerging Market Local Currency (EM LCY) bonds has been reduced due to their vulnerability to FX volatility and geopolitical risks.

Gold remains the preferred asset class, driven by ongoing central bank demand and elevated geopolitical risks. However, after a strong performance in 2024, we have marginally trimmed the allocation to take partial profit.

Within our opportunistic sleeve, we have exited all fixed income opportunistic ideas, including Global Convertibles, US Mortgage-Backed Securities (MBS), and US Treasury Long-dated bonds, following strong performance. The US Healthcare ETF position has also been exited due to sector headwinds from weaker-than-expected sales of weight-loss drugs and policy uncertainty. A new position has been initiated in a US financial ETF, which is expected to benefit from anticipated deregulation under the new administration, though risks from a potential sharp slowdown in the US economy are being closely monitored.
