MASTER FUND COMMENTARY

As of 31 December 2024

Fund Performance

The Signature CIO Income Fund posted negative performance in December. The rise in bond yields adversely affected high dividend equities, which are typically sensitive to interest rate changes. However, our diversified regional allocation in dividend equities and the inclusion of global growth-focused equities helped mitigate some returns.

Major currencies such the euro, pound, and yen weakened further against the dollar, translating into positive alpha from the hedging of DM IG (DM IG) government bonds. Additionally, a lower exposure in EM Local Currency bonds contributed positively to performance.

Our overweight position in DM HY bonds, particularly short-duration high yield bond, was a standout performer. High yield bonds have outperformed their investment grade counterparts, driven by expectations of pro-business policies under Trump's administration and credit spreads have tightened to historical lows due to strong demand. Our tilt towards sub-f Financials contributed positively, driven by a combination of healthy credit fundamentals and robust bank balance sheets. Increased exposure to high quality credit such as Asia USD bonds, also added value.

Our opportunistic trade in Asia HY bonds underperformed broad Asia USD bonds marginally.

Fund Positioning

The fund is well-positioned for the current market environment with diversified sources of income across various asset classes.

Within equities, we introduced an allocation to global equities, funded by a reduction in dividend equities. President-elect Trump's pro-growth policies and easing monetary conditions are likely to support the valuation of growth stocks. This shift aims to capture potential market upside and enhance total return potential. We have trimmed exposure to covered call strategy with the limited option premium income opportunities.

Within bonds, we increased exposure to DM HY bonds, including subordinated financials, which is likely to benefit from falling interest rates and deregulation policies in the next 6-12 months. A soft-landing macro scenario is likely to keep default rates low, with robust bank balance sheets and healthy credit fundamentals making subordinated financials attractive. We also added exposure to high quality bonds such as DM IG Government and Asia USD bonds, as US bond yields are expected to trend lower with the Fed's dovish trajectory. Conversely, we have trimmed exposure to EM LCY bonds due to expectations of continued USD strength and limited policy easing capacity in EM economies.

Within the opportunistic sleeve, we have closed our opportunistic position in Indian government bonds, locking in profit as the relative value versus other EM bonds has reduced. We have initiated a new position in Asia High Yield Bonds, as peak defaults in the Chinese property sector are likely to be behind us, and Asian HY issuers are less exposed to geopolitical risks. However, slower growth remains a risk.
