MASTER FUND COMMENTARY

Fund Performance

The Signature CIO Conservative Fund returned flat in April despite sharp intra-month rate swings. An increased allocation to Emerging Market Local Currency (EM LCY) Bonds added value. Returns were supported by a weaker US dollar amid trade-related uncertainty, which provided a favourable backdrop for local currency denominated EM debt. High quality credits such as DM IG Corporate bonds continue to provide support and demonstrate relative resilience amid volatility and recession risks, due to sound fundamentals and reduced debt levels. DM HY bonds, on the other hand, detracted from performance as credit spreads widened. However, fundamentals of DM HY bonds continue to remain healthy and resilient.

Fund Positioning

We continue to increase the defensiveness of the portfolio by marginally reducing credit exposure in favour of higher-rated assets. Specifically, we have shifted some allocation from Asia USD bonds into DM IG government bonds and EM LCY bonds to potentially benefit from lower bond yield (at the long end) and a weaker dollar in the next few months. Within DM HY bonds, we also took advantage of the recent spread compression to rebalance out of US HY short duration into broad DM HY bonds for higher credit quality.
